WASHINGTON, DC

Dr. Kevin Walsh has been appointed to the Board of Directors of the ICA's Wellness Council.

The Wellness Council was created by the International Chiropractic Association in response to the growing need of evidence-based lifestyle interventions and practices for the management and prevention unprecedented escalation in chronic illnesses plaguing our communities.

The ICA Council on Wellness Science is tasked with providing resources and training to Doctors of Chiropractic in such practices emphasizing lifestyle choices as the key variable in maintaining the body's optimal capacity to respond to environmental and emotional stressors leading to chronic illness or health.

The Certified Chiropractic Wellness Practitioner (CCWP) designation is given to Doctors of Chiropractic who complete the program and demonstrate their knowledge and expertise in the wellness practice. The first designations were given in 2004. Dr. Walsh received his designation in the spring of 2009. Dr. Walsh also holds the designation, Certified Clinical Chiropractic Pediatrics (CCCP) in which he earned from the ICA's Council on Chiropractic Pediatrics in 2003.
