Works by Printmaker and Illustrator Paula Goodman Koz now on Display at the Alliance

Williamsburg, VA – The newest artist to exhibit in The Art Gallery of the Greater Williamsburg Chamber & Tourism Alliance is printmaker and illustrator Paula Goodman Koz. The gallery is located in the lobby of the Alliance at 421. N. Boundary Street and is open Monday through Friday from 8:30 am to 5:00 pm. The works will be on display through the end of April.

Paula Goodman Koz is a printmaker and illustrator specializing in block prints for nearly 30 years. Starting her life as a professional copywriter, Koz soon found out she enjoyed the art department much more than the copy department and quickly headed to art school. She complete the printmaking program at the National Academy of Design and went on to work with the New York Times, The Wall Street Journal, Scholastic , Highlights for Children, and others. After a short break she began to concentrate on illustration. Goodman Koz has won several awards and been recognized in several exhibitions and forums nationwide. She has recently worked with the Colonial Road Runners Club, National Public Radio (NPR), Virginia Shakespeare Festival and many other locally and nationwide.

The Alliance opened the art gallery as part of its ongoing support of the arts in Williamsburg and to highlight the works of member artists.
